Access Policy

The computing facility you are accessing and the software contained on it is proprietary to Clinical Reference Laboratory (CRL). Its access and use are restricted to authorized customers of CRL and their designated employees. Unauthorized users should EXIT immediately to avoid possible civil or criminal liability. Unauthorized access to this facility or copying (or any other reproduction) of materials from this system is prohibited under the copyright laws of the United States as well as applicable international conventions, and is punishable by civil and/or criminal penalties.

As a condition of being granted access to this facility and its information, an authorized user agrees that CRL is not liable for any misuse of the facility or its information; or use of any kind by any party other than the authorized user and further agrees to hold harmless CRL for any claim made by the user or any third party arising out of unauthorized use or misuse.
